THE SOCIAL SIDE

Social Program Made Up From Many Events

With the horse show in full swing and a Liberty loan rally at the home of Mrs. William A. Slater on the carpet, as well as the private view of the "Sky Fighters of France," a thrilling exhibition of paintings by Lieut. Henri Farre, of the French Flying Corps, yesterday's social program was unusually full and varied. Many persons attended two of the big events of the afternoon, and some were brave enough to attempt to take in all three.

The reception marking the formal opening of Lieutenant Farre's exhibition, which is to be shown at the Washington Club for several days for the benefit of the children of French aviators killed in the war, was quite the most brilliant event of the afternoon. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, accompanied by Miss Helen Woodrow Bonas and Miss Edith Bonham, was present, likewise the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, Countess di Cellere, Lady Reading, Mrs. Riano, and Captain Tardieu, high commissioner of France.

Today the exhibit, which is now open to the public, will close at 8 o'clock p. m., as the Washington Club is booked this evening for the supper dance—modeled after those of the famous Club de Vingt, of New York, for which Mrs. Hawksworth will be hostess. Hereafter the exhibition will be open both afternoon and evening; and an official French war film, put out under the auspices of the Government, will be shown at 8 o'clock and again at 9 o'clock.

The showing of the motion picture was a feature of the entertainment yesterday afternoon, and Lieutenant Farre was there to explain his own pictures. He made a tour of the rooms with Mrs. Jusserand, who proved an appreciative and discriminating critic. The Marquis de Polignac, chairman of the committee which arranged the benefit, received the guests, and Mrs. Frank L. Polk and Mrs. William Phillips presided at the tea table.

Major George Tulaane, chief of the French aviation mission in Washington, this country, and Lieut. George Flachaire, famous French ace, were among the most interesting guests at the private view, coming from New York by aeroplane especially to attend. They returned last evening. Other present were Senator Peter Goelet Gerry, Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Akeel C. P. Wickfield, Mrs. Breckinridge Long, Mrs.

Many Notable Folks Attend Horse Show

The Horse Show, which opened so auspiciously on Tuesday afternoon, and which bids fair to add substantially to the Red Cross funds, attracted a fashionable attendance yesterday afternoon. Again interest was divided between the horses in the ring, the notables in the boxes, and the exhibition of aerial "stunts" which went on above the spectators. Three machines—the Caproni, the Avro, and an American make biplane—were up and indulged in a mock battle which lasted nearly two hours.

The Italian Ambassador and Countess di Cellere were present, likewise Mrs. Naon, wife of the Argentine ambassador, who was in a box with Mrs. Horace Westcott and several other ladies. The Swedish Minister and Mrs. Ekongren were also there to represent the Diplomatic Corps, and entertained a box party with Mrs. John P. Jackson, mother of the hostess, among their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter had one of the most interesting box parties of the afternoon, having as guest of honor their small daughter, Miss Nancy Leiter, aged a year and a half. She sat on her nurse's knee and smiled winningly at the passersby from under a fetching blue poke bonnet.

Mrs. Leiter's mother, Mrs. John R. Williams, was her guest for part of the afternoon, and so was Mrs. Ormsby McCammon. Mrs. John Ballentine Pittney, sister of Mrs. Leiter, in gray ambience corps uniform, served as chauffeur for several army officers and consequently left early.

Mrs. Akeel Wickfield visited for some time in Mr. and Mrs. Leiter's box before going on to her own box to join her two young sons, Clarence Moore, Jr., and Lloyd Moore, who were chaperoned by their French bonnet.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson entertained a box party, having as guests, Miss Caplain, of Montreal, who is staying with them; Miss Elizabeth Horsey, of Flomery, and Mr. Clarke. Mrs. Blaise Pitkin, with Mrs. William F. R. Pitt, Miss Mary Sanger, daughter of Col. and Mrs. William Cary Sanger, entertained a party of young people, among them Commander McCauley, R. N. R., in their box.

Miss Helen Blodgett has as her guests, Miss Madeline Austin, Miss Madeleine Forcher, Miss Nona Blodgett, and Mrs. Delos Blodgett 24, and Col. William E. Horton.

Others noted in the boxes were Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, who was with Mrs. Francis S. Nash; Mr. and Mrs. Ord Preston; Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Barklie, Mrs. Richard and Harlow, who was accompanied by Miss Sargeant; Miss Harriet Peckham; Miss Edith Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Upson, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Addison, Major George Oliver Totten, Robert Fitch Shepherd, James S. Ellerson, William E. Fowler, and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Langhorne.

Mr. Manning has enlisted in the medical corps, and will be on duty at Walter Reed Hospital.

The Georgetown center of the American Red Cross will hold a rally Monday evening, April 29, at 8 o'clock, in the Georgetown Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Levy, of the British Red Cross, will talk on the work of the Red Cross in France. Mrs. Levy has been a Red Cross nurse "over there" since 1914, and has recently come to America on three months' leave. Mrs. Newton D. Baker will sing.

The President and Mrs. Wilson, accompanied by Mrs. William H. Bolling and John Randolph Bolling, occupied a box at Poli's Theater last evening to see that stirring bit of patriotic propaganda, "Getting Together."

The house was packed, and the audience, which included many notables, was roused to a high pitch of enthusiasm. The Secretary of State, Mr. Lansing, was present, and was accompanied by Mrs. Lansing's children, Mr. and Mrs. John Foster Dulles, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Penfield. Should a dentifrice be strongly drugged?

"A little knowledge is a dangerous thing."
Many a person, knowing the benefit done by drugs in one direction, is easily misled into believing "patent medicine claims" made for some dentifrices.

The prime purpose of a dentifrice is to clean the teeth through physical action. It is an easy matter to include needless, risky chemicals in order to give some sort of a basis for "cure all" promises. In commenting to your patients about dentifrices in general, caution them against expecting any such druggy preparation to take the place of regular office visits for keeping their teeth and mouths sound and wholesome.

Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream makes no claim to be a panacea. It is primarily an efficient cleaner of the teeth, mildly antiseptic, and flavored deliciously to encourage the tooth brush habit, thus co-operating with the dentist between office visits.
